EMPIRE GIVES WAY TO DEMOCRATIC WORLD ORDER

NEWS & VIEWS (continued from Home page)

Getting to World Government

World federalist poet Bob Neumann in "There's Gotta Be a Way" writes:

"It can be done.
As a world
we've willed away absolute kings,
we've willed away slavery,
and we can will away war,
making it but another barbarism,
of our bloody, difficult history.

But a nonviolent revolution
it ought and probably must be!"

Superman, an American comic book icon, has announced his intention to denounce his U.S. citizenship before the United Nations. "I'm tired of having my actions construed as instruments of U.S. policy," he complains. "The world's too small, too connected," explains Superman sounding like a true world citizen. (Found in Action Comics, 27 April 2011, issue #900.)

Superman's next step could be to become a world patriot helping to save-the-world by joining the Earth Federation! Stay tuned...[editor]

As the demand for "we, the people" democracy grows, might the nations in transition such as Egypt, Tunisia, Yemen and others use the Earth Constitution as an ideal model for writing a new national constitution?

(Editor's note: Professor Martin is no ordinary professor. His writings may prove to be more significant than anything published in the last two centuries. They are a guide to a peaceful, worldwide political revolution and to a moral and spiritual renaissance. This editor has described Dr. Martin, from a small university in Virginia, USA, as "the most important, unknown man in America.")
